Chinese in the Atlanta Economy

The Chinese-American community has not only adapted to their new home, they are making major contributions to the region’s 21st century economy. The median household income for the region’s Chinese households in 2005 was $84,200. More than ten times as high as all households, the median income for Taiwanese households was an estimated $136,000. The Atlanta-Peachtree corridor is the most visible locations of the community, especially along North Peachtree Road in Chamblee. In addition to divisions between the Chinese-American and Taiwanese-speaking communities, there are also several small clusters, especially in Decatur, Lawrenceville, and Roswell.

During the past decade, the Chinese community in the Atlanta region has become more active and visible. Many of these developments stem from the 1996 Olympic Games and the 2000 Census, which indicated a significant increase in the number of people of Asian origin in the region. In addition, the Chinese-American community has been active in political affairs, with several members running for office and serving on local boards.

The Chinese-American community has also contributed to the region’s cultural and economic life. Many Chinese-owned businesses have opened in the area, and there are several Chinese restaurants and shops. In addition, the Chinese-American community has been active in community affairs, with several organizations serving as intermediaries between the Chinese-American community and the larger population. These organizations include the Atlanta Chinese Cultural Center, the Chinese Business Association of Atlanta, and the Atlanta Chinese Community Center.

Despite these developments, the Chinese-American community still faces some challenges. One of the most significant is the language barrier, which can make it difficult for Chinese Americans to communicate with the larger population. In addition, there is some concern about the future of the Chinese-American community in the region, as many members are young and may not want to continue the traditions of their predecessors.

Conclusion

In summary, the Chinese-American community in the Atlanta region is a vibrant and growing population. They have made significant contributions to the region’s culture and economy, and their presence is likely to continue to grow in the future.

Who are the Chinese-Americans?

The Chinese-American community is an important part of the Atlanta region. They have a long history in the region, and their numbers have increased significantly in recent years. The Chinese-American community is concentrated in certain areas of the region, with the most visible locations being along North Peachtree Road in Chamblee. In addition, there are several smaller clusters in Decatur, Lawrenceville, and Roswell.

The Chinese-American community is a diverse group, with members coming from a variety of places in China. They have come to the region for a variety of reasons, including political and economic motives.

The Chinese-American community has made significant contributions to the region’s economy, with many members working in high-demand fields such as engineering and finance. They have also made significant contributions to the region’s culture, with many members being involved in community affairs and volunteering their time.

Despite these contributions, the Chinese-American community still faces some challenges. One of the most significant is the language barrier, which can make it difficult for Chinese Americans to communicate with the larger population. In addition, there is some concern about the future of the Chinese-American community in the region, as many members are young and may not want to continue the traditions of their predecessors.

Conclusion

In summary, the Chinese-American community in the Atlanta region is a vibrant and growing population. They have made significant contributions to the region’s culture and economy, and their presence is likely to continue to grow in the future.

Who are the Chinese-Americans?

The Chinese-American community is an important part of the Atlanta region. They have a long history in the region, and their numbers have increased significantly in recent years. The Chinese-American community is concentrated in certain areas of the region, with the most visible locations being along North Peachtree Road in Chamblee. In addition, there are several smaller clusters in Decatur, Lawrenceville, and Roswell.

The Chinese-American community is a diverse group, with members coming from a variety of places in China. They have come to the region for a variety of reasons, including political and economic motives.

The Chinese-American community has made significant contributions to the region’s economy, with many members working in high-demand fields such as engineering and finance. They have also made significant contributions to the region’s culture, with many members being involved in community affairs and volunteering their time.

Despite these contributions, the Chinese-American community still faces some challenges. One of the most significant is the language barrier, which can make it difficult for Chinese Americans to communicate with the larger population. In addition, there is some concern about the future of the Chinese-American community in the region, as many members are young and may not want to continue the traditions of their predecessors.

Conclusion

In summary, the Chinese-American community in the Atlanta region is a vibrant and growing population. They have made significant contributions to the region’s culture and economy, and their presence is likely to continue to grow in the future.

Who are the Chinese-Americans?

The Chinese-American community is an important part of the Atlanta region. They have a long history in the region, and their numbers have increased significantly in recent years. The Chinese-American community is concentrated in certain areas of the region, with the most visible locations being along North Peachtree Road in Chamblee. In addition, there are several smaller clusters in Decatur, Lawrenceville, and Roswell.

The Chinese-American community is a diverse group, with members coming from a variety of places in China. They have come to the region for a variety of reasons, including political and economic motives.

The Chinese-American community has made significant contributions to the region’s economy, with many members working in high-demand fields such as engineering and finance. They have also made significant contributions to the region’s culture, with many members being involved in community affairs and volunteering their time.

Despite these contributions, the Chinese-American community still faces some challenges. One of the most significant is the language barrier, which can make it difficult for Chinese Americans to communicate with the larger population. In addition, there is some concern about the future of the Chinese-American community in the region, as many members are young and may not want to continue the traditions of their predecessors.

Conclusion

In summary, the Chinese-American community in the Atlanta region is a vibrant and growing population. They have made significant contributions to the region’s culture and economy, and their presence is likely to continue to grow in the future.
Who are the Chinese-Americans?

China, the world’s most populous nation with an estimated 1.3 billion residents, has a long history of immigration to the United States. The first known Chinese immigrants came to the United States in the 1820s and 1830s, and by the 1840s, tens of thousands of Chinese were relocating to the United States in response to changing economic or political conditions. Beginning in the 1840s, tens of thousands of Chinese men entered the United States to work on the railroads and in other industries. By the 1860s, the Chinese had become a significant part of the labor force in many parts of the United States, particularly in the Western states. The Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882 prohibited the immigration of Chinese laborers to the United States, but it did not prevent the entry of Chinese students, merchants, and professionals. In the 20th century, the Chinese community in the United States grew rapidly, and by the 1970s, the United States was home to more than 1 million Chinese Americans. Today, the Chinese-American population is estimated to be around 2 million people, making it one of the largest Asian-American communities in the United States. The Chinese Americans are a diverse group, consisting of people of different ages, genders, and backgrounds. The community is made up of people who have come to the United States from China, Hong Kong, Taiwan, and other parts of Asia. They have come for a variety of reasons, including political, economic, and personal reasons. The Chinese-American community is made up of people who share a common language, culture, and heritage, and who are proud of their Chinese roots. They have also made significant contributions to the United States, and have played important roles in various fields, including business, education, and politics. The Chinese-American community is a vital part of the United States, and plays an important role in shaping the country's culture and society.
Chinese in the Atlanta Region: By the Numbers

- Gwinnett County is home to the largest population of Chinese with 3,868, followed by DeKalb (2,958) and Clayton (245). There are also significant concentrations of Chinese along I-85 in Gwinnett and northern Fulton. There are, however, concentrations of Chinese along I-75 in Douglas, Cobb, and Cherokee counties, as well.

- There are 110,283 Asians living in the region. The Chinese, in fact, are the largest popular ethnic community hailing from Asia, with Indian, Vietnamese and Koreans each having greater numbers.

- In the Atlanta Region, Cantonese or Hong Kong style, is from the southeastern region of China. Seasoned subtly, it incorporates stir-frying, using soy sauce and garlic. The Hanmun style originated in the central region of China and is relatively mild, hot and spicy, as well as sweet and sour. The Peking style, from the northern region of China, is characterized by timered, seasoned dishes containing garlic, scallions, leeks or chives. Mandarin style cooking varies and is sometimes identical to the Cantonese style.

Chinese Life in Metro Atlanta (cont’d)

- In addition to other Western Chinese-Americans, may celebrate the following festivals and holidays (some based on the lunar calendar):

  - Chinese New Year
    - January/February
  - Chinese Mid-Autumn Festival
    - September
  - Confucius' Birthday
    - September
  - Teachers' Day
    - September

Holidays Celebrated

Chinese Life in Atlanta Region, 2000

- Teenagers and young adults, although there was a Chinese community in the Atlanta area since the 1950s, has been over the last 35 years that the major movement and cultural impact of this region's Chinese-American community has become evident.

Who are the Chinese-Americans? (cont’d)

- There are many Chinese restaurants in the Atlanta region. Dishes are strictly based on the lunar calendar, and many are served with a combination of spicy and sour flavors. The most popular dishes are dumplings, spring rolls, and fried rice.

- Cantonese or Hong Kong style, is from the southeastern region of China. Seasoned subtly, it incorporates stir-frying, using soy sauce and garlic. The Hanmun style originated in the central region of China and is relatively mild, hot and spicy, as well as sweet and sour. The Peking style, from the northern region of China, is characterized bytimered, seasoned dishes containing garlic, scallions, leeks or chives. Mandarin style cooking varies and is sometimes identical to the Cantonese style.

Chinese Customs and Culture

- There are many Chinese dialects. Most Chinese individuals in the Atlanta region speak Mandarin. Other dialects spoken include Cantonese and Taiwanese. Written characters for each of these dialects are essentially the same. Linguistic differences become apparent in the pronunciation. A Chinese sound may have four different meanings depending on the word. For example, people from Beijing speaking Mandarin may not be able to understand people from Canton or Taiwan.

- There are many Chinese restaurants in the Atlanta region. Dishes are strictly based on the lunar calendar, and many are served with a combination of spicy and sour flavors. The most popular dishes are dumplings, spring rolls, and fried rice.

- Cantonese or Hong Kong style, is from the southeastern region of China. Seasoned subtly, it incorporates stir-frying, using soy sauce and garlic. The Hanmun style originated in the central region of China and is relatively mild, hot and spicy, as well as sweet and sour. The Peking style, from the northern region of China, is characterized by timered, seasoned dishes containing garlic, scallions, leeks or chives. Mandarin style cooking varies and is sometimes identical to the Cantonese style.

- There are many Chinese restaurants in the Atlanta region. Dishes are strictly based on the lunar calendar, and many are served with a combination of spicy and sour flavors. The most popular dishes are dumplings, spring rolls, and fried rice.

- Cantonese or Hong Kong style, is from the southeastern region of China. Seasoned subtly, it incorporates stir-frying, using soy sauce and garlic. The Hanmun style originated in the central region of China and is relatively mild, hot and spicy, as well as sweet and sour. The Peking style, from the northern region of China, is characterized by timered, seasoned dishes containing garlic, scallions, leeks or chives. Mandarin style cooking varies and is sometimes identical to the Cantonese style.

- There are many Chinese restaurants in the Atlanta region. Dishes are strictly based on the lunar calendar, and many are served with a combination of spicy and sour flavors. The most popular dishes are dumplings, spring rolls, and fried rice.

- Cantonese or Hong Kong style, is from the southeastern region of China. Seasoned subtly, it incorporates stir-frying, using soy sauce and garlic. The Hanmun style originated in the central region of China and is relatively mild, hot and spicy, as well as sweet and sour. The Peking style, from the northern region of China, is characterized by timered, seasoned dishes containing garlic, scallions, leeks or chives. Mandarin style cooking varies and is sometimes identical to the Cantonese style.

- There are many Chinese restaurants in the Atlanta region. Dishes are strictly based on the lunar calendar, and many are served with a combination of spicy and sour flavors. The most popular dishes are dumplings, spring rolls, and fried rice.

- Cantonese or Hong Kong style, is from the southeastern region of China. Seasoned subtly, it incorporates stir-frying, using soy sauce and garlic. The Hanmun style originated in the central region of China and is relatively mild, hot and spicy, as well as sweet and sour. The Peking style, from the northern region of China, is characterized by timered, seasoned dishes containing garlic, scallions, leeks or chives. Mandarin style cooking varies and is sometimes identical to the Cantonese style.
In addition to other Western holidays, Chinese-Americans may celebrate the following festivals and holidays (some based on the lunar calendar):
Chinese Life in Metro Atlanta (cont’d)

Highway consider. Community members often congregate at these locations for meetings, though there may be some reluctance by owners to “host” these meetings. Many of the new businesses in the area, which also include many grocery stores, are attributed to relatives of Chinese immigrants returning from China and Taiwan. Some of the new immigrants on whose help are as students. After graduation they usually would find a job here first instead of going back to their homeland so that they can apply for permanent residence (green card) through employment. One of the main reasons is that the green card and the later American citizenship provide a great freedom for them to come back to the US if they fail to travel to China in other places in the world (for the Chinese only in a percent of visa applications to the US are granted). It also gives them the benefits of Medical and Social Security when they retire since they pay taxes just like all American citizens. On the other hand, those who have obtained green card as American citizenship often look for opportunities to go back to China for better positions, lower living costs and favorable taxation.

Who are the Chinese-Americans? (cont’d)

Chinese Life in Metro Atlanta (cont’d)

Highway consider. Community members often congregate at these locations for meetings, though there may be some reluctance by owners to “host” these meetings. Many of the new businesses in the area, which also include many grocery stores, are attributed to relatives of Chinese immigrants returning from China and Taiwan. Some of the new immigrants on whose help are as students. After graduation they usually would find a job here first instead of going back to their homeland so that they can apply for permanent residence (green card) through employment. One of the main reasons is that the green card and the later American citizenship provide a great freedom for them to come back to the US if they fail to travel to China in other places in the world (for the Chinese only in a percent of visa applications to the US are granted). It also gives them the benefits of Medical and Social Security when they retire since they pay taxes just like all American citizens. On the other hand, those who have obtained green card as American citizenship often look for opportunities to go back to China for better positions, lower living costs and favorable taxation.

Who are the Chinese-Americans? (cont’d)

Chinese Life in Metro Atlanta (cont’d)

Highway consider. Community members often congregate at these locations for meetings, though there may be some reluctance by owners to “host” these meetings. Many of the new businesses in the area, which also include many grocery stores, are attributed to relatives of Chinese immigrants returning from China and Taiwan. Some of the new immigrants on whose help are as students. After graduation they usually would find a job here first instead of going back to their homeland so that they can apply for permanent residence (green card) through employment. One of the main reasons is that the green card and the later American citizenship provide a great freedom for them to come back to the US if they fail to travel to China in other places in the world (for the Chinese only in a percent of visa applications to the US are granted). It also gives them the benefits of Medical and Social Security when they retire since they pay taxes just like all American citizens. On the other hand, those who have obtained green card as American citizenship often look for opportunities to go back to China for better positions, lower living costs and favorable taxation.

Who are the Chinese-Americans? (cont’d)

Chinese Life in Metro Atlanta (cont’d)

Highway consider. Community members often congregate at these locations for meetings, though there may be some reluctance by owners to “host” these meetings. Many of the new businesses in the area, which also include many grocery stores, are attributed to relatives of Chinese immigrants returning from China and Taiwan. Some of the new immigrants on whose help are as students. After graduation they usually would find a job here first instead of going back to their homeland so that they can apply for permanent residence (green card) through employment. One of the main reasons is that the green card and the later American citizenship provide a great freedom for them to come back to the US if they fail to travel to China in other places in the world (for the Chinese only in a percent of visa applications to the US are granted). It also gives them the benefits of Medical and Social Security when they retire since they pay taxes just like all American citizens. On the other hand, those who have obtained green card as American citizenship often look for opportunities to go back to China for better positions, lower living costs and favorable taxation.
Who are the Chinese-Americans?

Chinese-Americans are tied by bonds of culture and language. Regarded as the world’s model minority, Chinese-Americans have earned a place in the pantheon of immigrants throughout history. During the ensuing decades, China experienced internal political turmoil, and war with Japan, and civil war between Nationalist and communist forces. The Chinese Communist Party led by Mao Zedong, in 1949, had declared the Republic of China (ROC) in Nationalist movement of Dr. Sun Yet-sen overthrew the emperor and

Continued inside

translated chinese organizations and resources

Before it's a listing of selected organizations and resources who work with the Chinese Community. Additional resources are available at www.atlantagmail.com

who are the chinese-americans?

Who are the Chinese-Americans?

Chinese-Americans are tied by bonds of culture and language. Regarded as the world’s model minority, Chinese-Americans have earned a place in the pantheon of immigrants throughout history. During the ensuing decades, China experienced internal political turmoil, and war with Japan, and civil war between Nationalist and communist forces. The Chinese Communist Party led by Mao Zedong, in 1949, had declared the Republic of China (ROC) in Nationalist movement of Dr. Sun Yet-sen overthrew the emperor and

During the ensuing decades, China experienced internal political turmoil, and war with Japan, and civil war between Nationalist and communist forces. The Chinese Communist Party led by Mao Zedong, in 1949, had declared the Republic of China (ROC) in Nationalist movement of Dr. Sun Yet-sen overthrew the emperor and

Continued inside